

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Chapter 1 Thought Enfleshed: Philosophy and Psychology as Figured in Latin Allegory	31
Chapter 2 Allegorizing the Split Self: A Middle English Debate Between the Body and the Soul	70
Chapter 3 “The Soul Is the Prison of the Body”: Pedagogy, Punishment, and Self-Love in a Middle English Debate	105
Chapter 4 Defending the Female Self: “Sawles Warde” and Sowlehele	139
Chapter 5 Promising the Female, Delivering the Male: Transformations of Gender in Piers Plowman	168
Conclusion	197

Appendix

In a Thestri Stude I Stod (I Stood in a Dark Place),

Translation by Masha Raskolnikov

203

Bibliography

207

Index

219